X U.S. IMPORT DUTIES ON AGRICULTURAL PRODUCTS, 1959

By Lucille Corder and Annette A. Parisi
Trade Policy Division

Introduction

This report contains the U. S. import duties and import taxes that have been in effect on agricultural products from June 18, 1930 (the effective date of the Tariff Act of 1930), to January 1, 1959. For each product the tariff treatment obtaining in 1930 and changes made since then are indicated. Wherever feasible, the import tax imposed since 1930 on certain products--dutiable or free--is also shown. Products that are free of duty or exempt from import tax are also included.

The data contained in this report, although compiled from official sources, are presented here for informational purposes only. They do not constitute authority as to the rate of duty legally applicable to any given imported article. Any question as to the tariff classification of any product for importation into the United States and the applicable rate of duty should be directed to the Bureau of Customs, Washington 25, D. C. for an authoritative ruling.

Most products included here are classified as agricultural under present coding practices of the Bureau of the Census and other governmental agencies. However, oils and fats from marine animals and fish have also been included because they are competitive with animal and vegetable oils and fats.

Any agricultural commodity not listed specifically is included in one of the "basket" items for certain categories of products "not specially provided for" (nspf) or "not elsewhere specified" (nes). There are many of these "basket" items in both the U. S. Tariff Act and in Schedule A (Statistical Classification of Imports into the United States).

In all cases, the last rate of duty shown in the report is the January 1, 1959 rate and applies to all foreign countries except for Cuba and the Philippines and for the Soviet Union and Communist-dominated areas. The tariff and import tax status of products of Cuba and the Philippines are discussed separately in the two sections that follow. Products of the Soviet Union and Communist-dominated areas pay the full 1930 rates of duty (or section 336 rates, if any. See page 4 for explanation of section 336.) The status of these areas is also discussed separately.

Tariff and Tax Status of Products of Cuba

At the time of enactment of the Tariff Act of 1930, Cuban products imported into the United States were accorded preferential rates 20 percent below the general rates of duty or in a few cases preferential free entry, in accordance with the commitments of the Convention of Commercial Reciprocity of 1902 between the United States and Cuba. Under the reciprocal trade agreement with Cuba, effective September 3, 1934, the preference in the U. S. duty on certain Cuban products was increased.

Pursuant to the Exclusive Agreement Between the United States of America and Cuba Supplementing the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT), negotiated at Geneva in 1947, preferential tariff treatment was continued with respect to certain Cuban products and discontinued with respect to others. The principal Cuban products are still accorded preferential tariff treatment on entry into the United States. The preferential rate of duty applicable to Cuba is in most cases specified in Part II of Schedule XX (U. S. concessions) of the GATT. A relatively few Cuban products which are not described in Part II or Part I of Schedule XX continue to be accorded applicable margins of preference, but not bound rates of duty, until such margins are reduced or eliminated as a result of concessions granted by the United States to third countries. Under GATT, the United States may not increase any margin of preference above the specific margin of preference prevailing on April 10, 1947.

The preferential rates which are applicable to Cuba are indicated in this tabulation.

Tariff and Tax Status of Products of the Philippines

Prior to April 30, 1946, imports of Philippine products not containing foreign materials with a value in excess of 20 percent of their total value were free of duty under section 301 of the Tariff Act of 1930.

Under the Philippine Trade Act of 1946 (P. L. 371-79th Cong.), this duty-free status was continued until July 4, 1954.

The Trade Act of 1946 was amended in 1954 (P. L. 474-83rd Cong.) to extend the duty-free status of Philippine products to January 1, 1956, when the revised Philippine Trade Act of 1955 (P. L. 196-84th Cong.) became effective.

The revised act changed substantially the provisions in the original act for the progressive elimination of tariff preferences. As compared with the original act, the revised act provided that U. S. rates of duty on imports of Philippine products should increase much more slowly in the early years and much more rapidly in the later years. The schedule for eliminating the tariff preferences on products of the Philippines under the revised (1955) act follows:

Period	Proportion of U. S. duties applicable ¹
	Percent
1956-58	5
1959-61	10
1962-64	20
1965-67	40
1968-70	60
1971-73	80
1974-(Jan. 1 - July 3)	² 100

¹ On those articles on which Cuba receives preferential treatment, the Cuban rate is the duty to which the percentages apply.

² This agreement has no effect after July 3, 1974.

The revised Trade Act also modified substantially the provisions of the original agreement that established absolute quotas and declining duty-free quotas on certain Philippine products. Under the revised act, the absolute import quotas on Philippine sugar and cordage were continued, but those on Philippine rice, cigars, cigar filler and scrap tobacco, coconut oil, and pearl or shell buttons were eliminated. Imports of Philippine rice ceased to be subject to any quota under the revised agreement; imports of cigars, cigar filler and scrap tobacco, coconut oil, and pearl or shell buttons, however, continued to be subject to declining duty-free quotas (in lieu of increasing import duties). The schedule of declining duty-free quotas in the revised act followed the same pattern as the schedule of increases in U. S. import duties--that is, for each category of Philippine articles, the quantity entitled to duty-free entry was reduced, not at the uniform rate of 5 percent of the base quantity each year as provided in the 1946 act, but by the same progression as import duties were to be increased. The base quantities of the articles on which the annual quotas were to be calculated were the same in the revised act as in the 1946 act, and are as follows:

Cigars	200 million
Scrap tobacco and stemmed and unstemmed filler tobacco	6.5 million lbs.
Coconut oil	200,000 long tons
Buttons of pearl or shell	850,000 gross

The absolute annual quotas, dutiable in accordance with the percentage schedules given above, are as follows:

Sugar, of which 56,000 short tons may be "direct-consumption" sugar	952,000 short tons, commercial weight
Cordage	6 million lbs.

Until July 4, 1974, Philippine products are subject to all import taxes at the same rate as are products of Cuba. Philippine coconut oil receives a preferential margin of 2¢ per pound in the "first domestic processing" tax¹ in the United States until July 4, 1974, unless the President finds that neither copra nor coconut oil are readily available in adequate supply and proclaims the suspension of the 2¢-per-pound differential. The Philippine Trade Act also provides that no processing or internal tax shall be imposed on manila (abaca) fiber, not dressed or manufactured in any manner.

Tariff and Tax Status of Products of the Soviet Union and Communist-dominated Areas

Until the Trade Agreements Extension Act of 1951, the trade agreements legislation provided for the extension of U. S. concessions to all foreign countries except those discriminating against U. S. products or otherwise tending to defeat the purposes of the Trade Agreements Act. The Extension Act of June 16, 1951 (P. L. 50-82nd Cong.), directed the President to withdraw all such concessions, "as soon as practicable," on products from the Soviet Union and "any nation or area dominated or controlled by the world Communist movement." The full Tariff Act of 1930 rates (or section 336 rates, if any) and the full rates of taxes thus apply to products of the following countries or areas:

Albania	Indochina (any part of Cambodia, Laos, or
Bulgaria	Vietnam under Communist domination)
China (any part under Communist	Korea (any part under Communist domination)
domination)	Kurile Islands
Czechoslovakia	Latvia
Danzig	Lithuania
East Prussia	Outer Mongolia
Estonia	Poland
Germany:	Rumania
The Soviet Zone and the Soviet	Southern Sakhalin
Sector of Berlin	Tannu Tuva
Areas under Polish domination	Tibet
Hungary	Union of Soviet Socialist Republics

Imports of ermine, fox, kolinsky, marten, mink, muskrat, and weasel furs and skins, dressed or undressed, which are the product of the Soviet Union or Communist China are prohibited pursuant to a directive in the Extension Act of 1951.

Restrictions Under the Sugar Act

Beginning with the Jones-Costigan Act of 1934 and continuing with the Sugar Acts of 1937 and 1948, sugar marketings in the United States, whether of domestic or foreign origin, have been limited by absolute quotas, except during periods of emergency when the President has exercised his authority to suspend the quotas. The Sugar Act of 1948 was amended and extended in 1951 and again in 1956. Its life currently extends through 1960.

Under the sugar program, the Secretary of Agriculture determines the quantity of sugar needed each year to supply the requirements of consumers in continental United States, taking into account "prices which will not be excessive to consumers and which will fairly and equitably maintain and protect the welfare of the domestic sugar industry." The quantity is then allocated, in the manner specified by law, among the mainland and offshore domestic producing areas, the Republic of the Philippines, Cuba, and other foreign countries. (See quota table, p. 10.)

Under current legislation, the allocations are made in two stages. First, for requirements up to 8,350,000 tons, raw value (the amount initially determined by the Secretary of Agriculture as U. S. consumption requirements for 1956), the quotas for domestic producing areas (domestic beet and mainland cane, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands) and the Philippines are absolute quantities. The remainder of the total amount determined by the Secretary of Agriculture (up to 8,350,000 tons) is allocated proportionately to Cuba (96 percent) and to other foreign countries exclusive of the Philippines (4 percent). Second, for any part of the quantity of sugar requirements in excess of 8,350,000 tons, domestic areas are allocated a 55-percent share and foreign countries other than the Philippines, a 45-percent share. In 1956, any quantity in excess of 8,350,000 tons allocable to foreign countries other than the Philippines was prorated to Cuba (96 percent) and other foreign countries (4 percent). Beginning in 1957, the share allocated to foreign countries other than the Philippines was prorated as follows: To Cuba (29.59 percent), Mexico (5.10 percent), the Dominican Republic (4.95 percent), Peru (4.33 percent), and other countries (1.03 percent). As noted above, the allocation to the Philippines is a fixed amount and so that country was not allocated a share of any quantity in excess of 8,350,000 tons.

The Sugar Act provides for reallocation of deficits from any supplying area, and, for off-shore areas (both domestic and foreign), limits the quantity that may be supplied as refined (direct-consumption) sugar. The act also provides for small separate quotas on imports of liquid sugar from foreign countries.

Restrictions Under Section 22 of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1933, as Amended

Import quotas and fees imposed under section 22 of the Agricultural Adjustment Act, as amended, are included in these tabulations.

Section 22 authorizes the President to restrict imports of any commodity, either by import fees or by quota limitations, whenever such imports render or tend to render ineffective, or materially interfere with programs of the Department of Agriculture relating to agricultural commodities, or reduce substantially the amount of any product processed in the United States from any agricultural commodity or product thereof with respect to which any such program or operation is being undertaken. Fees may not exceed 50 percent ad valorem and quotas may not be less than 50 percent of the quantity imported during a previous representative period, as determined by the President.

Import controls under section 22 were in effect on January 1, 1959, on cotton and cotton waste (including extra-long-staple cotton but excluding short harsh cotton), wheat and wheat products, tung nuts and tung oil, rye, rye flour and meal, butter, dried whole milk, dried skimmed milk, dried cream, dried buttermilk, malted milk and compounds and mixtures of or substitutes for milk or cream, certain cheeses, peanuts, peanut oil, flaxseed, linseed oil, butter substitutes including butter oil containing 45 percent or more of butterfat and articles containing 45 percent or more of butterfat (except those articles already under control, cheeses, evaporated and condensed milk, and products imported in retail packages).

Section 336, Tariff Act of 1930, "Equalization of Costs of Production"

Changes in import duties resulting from Tariff Commission investigations of foreign and domestic costs of production are included in these tabulations. Whenever the Commission finds that the duties expressed by statute do not equalize these costs of production, the Commission recommends to the President any increases or decreases in duty that are necessary for such equalization. Increases or decreases of rates of duty may not exceed 50 percent of the rates fixed by statute. Section 336 does not apply to any article on which the United States has granted a concession under a trade agreement.

The "Escape Clause," Section 7 of the Trade Agreements Extension Act of 1951, as Amended

The statutory escape clause procedure is contained in section 7 of the Trade Agreements Extension Act of 1951. The escape clause provides, in essence, that either party to a trade agreement may withdraw or modify any concessions made therein, if the article on which the concession was granted enters in such increased quantities as to cause or threaten serious injury to the domestic industry producing like or directly competitive articles. Such a clause was first included in the bilateral trade agreement between the United States and Mexico (1943).

Only two Tariff Commission investigations on agricultural products have resulted in action under this escape clause provision. These concerned dried figs (Aug. 16, 1952) and alsike clover seed (June 30, 1954). The escape clause actions on these products are shown in the tabulations.

Reciprocal Trade Agreements

Most of the rate-of-duty changes that these tabulations record have resulted from reciprocal trade agreement negotiations under section 350 of the Tariff Act of 1930, as amended. The original Trade Agreements Act was enacted June 12, 1934, for a 3-year period. Among other things, it authorized the President to proclaim modifications of import duties, subject to the limitation that no "existing" rate of duty could be increased or decreased by more than 50 percent. The act linked the most-favored-nation principle of 1923 with tariff-bargaining authority.

The Trade Agreements Act of 1934 was extended for two successive 3-year periods and then, in 1943, for 2 more years. A major change in negotiating authority came in 1945 when the act was extended for 3 years and authorized, among other things, 50-percent reductions of the rates in effect January 1, 1945. This authority was subsequently extended five times to June 12, 1955. Another major change in the negotiating authority was contained in 1955 legislation that amended the act of 1951. Authority was given to reduce duties by not more than 15 percent of the rates in effect on January 1, 1955. Not more than a 5-percent reduction was authorized at any one time and each 5-percent reduction must be in effect for one year before a further 5-percent reduction can be made. Alternatively, duties higher than 50 percent ad valorem (or ad valorem equivalent) can be reduced to 50 percent, but not more than one-third of the reduction may be made at one time and each part must be in effect for not less than one year. The Trade Agreements Extension Act of 1955 expired June 30, 1958. The Trade Agreements Extension Act of 1958 will remain in effect until the close of June 30, 1962. This Act gives the President additional authority to enter into foreign trade agreements.

Lists of trade agreements which have been concluded under the trade agreements authority follow:

* Countries with which the United States had bilateral agreements that were superseded by GATT.

¹ The United States and Cuba have an "exclusive" agreement supplementary to GATT whereby preferential tariff treatment is extended on some products not contained in GATT.

² All trade agreement concessions between Czechoslovakia and the United States were suspended as of September 29, 1951; application of reduced rates of duty to products of Czechoslovakia was terminated by the United States effective November 2, 1951, although Czechoslovakia is still a member of GATT. A previous bilateral agreement with Czechoslovakia was in effect 4/16/38-4/22/39.

⁵ The tariff concessions in the 1936 agreement with Nicaragua were mutually suspended in 1938.

⁶ Northern Rhodesia and Nyasaland were previously included in GATT as areas for which the United Kingdom had international responsibility, and Southern Rhodesia was previously a separate contracting party. On Oct. 29, 1954, the new Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland, which includes all three of these areas, became one separate contracting party.

Countries which have withdrawn from GATT as of January 1, 1959, and with which the United States does not currently (January 1, 1959) have any trade agreement

Administrative or Judicial Decisions and Regulations

Rate-of-duty changes that have resulted from changes in classifications made by judicial or administrative decisions are generally included in these tabulations, sometimes in footnotes. In references to such decisions, "T. D." means a Treasury Decision, "C. D." a Customs Decision, and "C. A. D." a Customs Appeals Decision. However, not all emergency wartime measures of a temporary nature are included. Quarantine regulations or antidumping or countervailing duties also are not included.

Wartime Controls of Imports

Import controls imposed during World War II under various wartime authorities, are not included in this tabulation.

¹ Imports have also been subject to absolute quotas since 1934. See table on "Final adjusted sugar quotas" on the following page. Imports from all countries of manufactured sugar (that is, direct-consumption sugar) are also subject to an "import compensating tax" of 0.535 cent per lb. of sugar polarizing 100 degrees.

² And fractions of a degree in proportion.

³ These rates are effective only during such time as title II of the Sugar Act of 1948, or substantially equivalent legislation, is in effect, whether or not the quotas, or any of them, authorized by such legislation are being applied or are suspended.

⁴ The reduction in the trade agreement with Cuba was suspended in accordance with the agreement when quotas were suspended.

⁵ The Tydings-McDuffie Act of 1934 provided for a 10-year annual tariff-free quota of 952,000 short tons, commercial weight, of sugar from the Philippines. Any excess was dutiable. See footnote 3 of the table on U. S. import quotas on the following page.

² Not more than 375,000 short tons, raw value, of the Cuban quota nor 56,000 tons, commercial weight, of the Philippine quota nor, typically, such portion of the quota for other foreign countries which exceeds 1.36% of the combined quotas of foreign countries, other than the Philippines, may be imported for direct consumption (i.e. without domestic refining).

³ In the Sugar Act of 1937, the Philippines had a quota stated in terms of a percentage of total U. S. sugar requirements. They did not make use of this quota to the extent that it was in excess of their duty-free quota of 952,000 short tons, commercial weight. Substantially similar circumstances prevailed in 1935 and 1936 under the provisions of the Jones-Costigan Act.

⁴ Quotas were not in effect 9/11/39-12/31/39.

⁵ Quotas were not in effect 4/12/42-12/31/47.

¹ Effective 9/3/36, an absolute quota was placed on sirups and sugar mixtures containing soluble sugar solids equal to 6% or less of total soluble solids, under the authority of the Jones-Costigan Act of 1934, as extended by Joint Res. 109. The Sugar Act of 1937 defined the products to which these import quotas applied as "liquid sugar." This act set the Cuban quota at 7,970,588 gal. and the quota for the Dominican Republic at 830,894 gal. (both in wine gal. of 72% total sugar content), with no quota for other foreign countries. These quotas were suspended between 9/12/39 and 12/31/39 and from 4/13/43 until 12/31/47. The same quotas became effective again 1/1/48 under the Sugar Act of 1948. In the 1951 amendment of the Sugar Act, an additional quota of 300,000 gal. was established for the British West Indies. These quotas are still in effect.

² An "import compensating tax" also applies to imports of this category if they are manufactured sugar (that is, direct consumption sugar). This tax is 0.5144¢ per lb. of total sugars.

³ And fractions of 1% in proportion.

⁴ These reduced rates of duty are effective only during such time as title II of the Sugar Act of 1948, or substantially equivalent legislation, is in effect in the United States, whether or not the quotas, or any of them, authorized by such legislation are being applied or are suspended.

⁶ Philippine products were free of duty until 1/1/56, at which time gradually increasing percentages of the rate of duty applicable to the product of Cuba began to be applied. See the section on the Tariff and Tax Status of Products of the Philippines on page 2.

⁷ Applicable to a quota of 1,500,000 gal. per calendar year from all countries including Cuba.

² Beginning with the calendar year 1941 there was a Philippine tax on exports to the United States of 5% of the full United States duty (P.L. 300, 76th Congress). The tax was suspended during 1942, reinstated during 1943 and increased by 5% per year to a total of 15% in 1945 (P.L. 367, 77th Congress). It was repealed as of 5/1/46 by the Philippine Trade Act. See the section on the Tariff and Tax Status Products of the Philippines on page 2.

³ Under this agreement, all dutiable Cuban tobacco and tobacco products (unstemmed equivalent) were subject to an annual absolute quota equal to 18% of the quantity of tobacco used in the manufacture of cigars in the United States during the preceding calendar year. The reduced duties to Cuba on these products were also conditioned on continuation of the United States cigar-tobacco adjustment program. This program was terminated on 3/16/36, but the rate on Cuban wrapper remained at $1.50 lb. because of the reduction in duty in the Netherlands trade agreement on 2/1/36 and Cuba's guaranteed preference of 20%.

⁵ Although both Syria and Lebanon withdrew from GATT in 1951 the concessions made by the United States to the Syria-Lebanon Customs Union were not withdrawn from GATT.

² Because of the GATT prohibition against increases in tariff preferences, a rate of 21¢ per lb. on unstemmed and 30¢ per lb. on stemmed filler (except cigarette leaf) applied in any calendar year after the entry in that year of a total aggregate quantity of 22 million lbs. of filler (other than cigarette leaf) and scrap tobacco, the product of Cuba.

⁴ The quota was 22 million lbs. (unstemmed equivalent) of Cuban filler tobacco, stemmed and unstemmed (excluding cigarette leaf), and of Cuban scrap tobacco in any calendar year after 1939.

¹ Philippine cigar filler, stemmed and unstemmed, and scrap tobacco were made subject to a duty-free quota of 4.5 million lbs. for the calendar year 1940, with successive reductions in the quota during the following years until Philippine independence, after which the Philippine product would become subject to regular United States duties. The quota for the calendar year 1940 was 4.5 million lbs. and for 1941 it was 4,275,000 lbs.

² As a wartime measure, the tariff quota for 1942 was restored to 4.5 million lbs. The progressive reductions in the quotas were resumed thereafter until passage of the Philippine Trade Act effective 1/1/46. The quotas, in lbs. per calendar year, for cigar filler, stemmed and unstemmed, and scrap tobacco were as follows:

1943.....	4,275,000
1944.....	4,050,000
1945.....	3,825,000

³ The Philippine Trade Act effective 1/1/56 provides for annual tariff-free quotas which gradually decrease. Beginning 1/1/74 there will be no duty-free quota. From 1/1/74 to 7/4/74 Philippine products will pay the same rate as Cuban products; as of 7/4/74 Philippine products will pay full duty rather than receiving the preferential rates to Cuban products. See the section on the Tariff and Tax Status of Products of the Philippines on page 2.

¹ Since 7/1/53, imports have been limited under sec. 22 of the Agricultural Adjustment Act, as amended, to 707,000 lbs. during each year beginning July 1.

² Under sec. 22 of the Agricultural Adjustment Act, as amended, imports of butter substitutes, including butter oil, containing 45% or more of butterfat and classifiable under par. 709 of the Tariff Act of 1930, were limited to 1,800,000 lbs. during the calendar year 1957, and are limited to 1,200,000 lbs. during each subsequent calendar year.

³ In addition to the duty, imported oleomargarine is subject to an internal revenue tax of 15¢ lb. (Internal Revenue Code, sec. 4591). The tax did not apply to the Philippine's oleomargarine before 7/4/46, but has been applicable since that date. Imported oleomargarine is also subject since 1936 to import-excise tax on taxable oil content under sec. 4581 of the Internal Revenue Code.

⁴ Not specifically identified in Schedule A.

⁵ Since 8/7/57 imports of these products have been prohibited under sec. 22 of the Agricultural Adjustment Act, as amended.

² Since 7/1/53, imports of linseed oil and combinations and mixtures in chief value of such oil have been subject to an import fee of 50% ad valorem under sec. 22 of the Agricultural Adjustment Act, as amended.

³ Subject to a tax on the first domestic processing under IRC sec. 4511. This tax was 5¢ per lb. for the products of all countries except the Philippines and United States' possessions or Trust Territories which paid only 3¢ per lb. until 9/1/57. P.L. 85-235, 8/30/57, suspended the initial 3¢ per lb. tax during 9/1/57 through 6/30/60. Thus, during this period, no such processing tax is payable on products of the Philippines, or of United States' possessions or Trust Territories, and only 2¢ per lb. is payable on products of other countries or areas. Coconut oil imports are also duty-free if products of the Philippines and within specified quota limits. Over-quota imports pay the full rate of duty, i.e., 1¢ per lb. (See the section on the Tariff and Tax Status of Products of the Philippines on page 2.)

¹ The following import fees and/or quotas on almonds have been effective under sec. 22 of the Agricultural Adjustment Act, as amended:

Period	Description	Quota and/or fee
10/1/51-9/30/52	Shelled and blanched almonds	10¢ lb., but not more than 50% ad valorem on imports in excess of 4.5 million lbs., not more than 0.5 million lbs. of which might consist of blanched almonds.
10/1/52-9/30/53 and 10/1/53-9/30/54	Shelled, blanched, roasted, or otherwise prepared or preserved almonds (not including almond paste)	5¢ lb., on the first 7 million lbs. imported and 10¢ lb. but not more than 50% ad valorem on imports in excess of this quantity.
10/1/54-9/30/55 and 10/23/57-9/30/58	Shelled, blanched, roasted or otherwise prepared or preserved almonds (not including almond paste)	10¢ lb., but not more than 50% ad valorem, on imports in excess of 5 million lbs.

² Under sec. 22 of the Agricultural Adjustment Act, as amended, imports of shelled filberts, whether or not blanched, were limited to 4.5 million lbs. during the year ending 9/30/53. Under the same authority, a fee of 10¢ per lb. was imposed on imports of shelled filberts in excess of 6 million lbs. during 10/1/54 through 9/30/55. This latter action was modified on 7/15/55 to permit an additional 1.5 million lbs. To be imported at 8¢ per lb. for the period of 7/15/55 - 9/30/55.

¹ Duty-free entry was authorized 12/21/44 to 9/17/47 by Act of Congress.

² Under sec. 22 of Agricultural Adjustment Act, as amended, effective 7/1/53, peanuts whether shelled, blanched, salted, prepared, or preserved (including roasted peanuts, but not including peanut butter) entered during each year beginning August 1, are limited to 1,709,000 lbs. (Peanuts in the shell are charged against this quota on the basis of 75 lbs. for each 100 lbs. of peanuts in the shell.) This action was modified during 3/9/55 to 9/10/55 by allowing an additional 51 million lbs. of imports of large Virginia-type shelled peanuts on which a fee of 2¢ per lb. was assessed. From 5/16/55 to 7/31/55 unlimited imports of shelled peanuts of all sizes were allowed, such imports being subject to a 2¢ per lb. fee. Unlimited imports of shelled Virginia-type peanuts were permitted during 8/31/56 to 9/10/56, such imports being assessed a 7¢ per lb. fee. The quota and fee thereafter has been the level originally set on 1/1/53 as stated above.

Since 12/11/50 (after China's withdrawal from GATT) the duty on all shelled walnuts imported has reverted to 15¢ per lb. All such imports are still counted against the quota, however; the duty on walnuts, blanched, roasted, prepared or preserved is still 7.5¢ per lb. until the quota is filled and then reverts to 15¢ per lb.

² Although both Syria and Lebanon withdrew from GATT in 1951, the concessions made by the United States to the Syria-Lebanon customs union have not been changed.

¹ The concession to Benelux on 6/6/51, contained a proviso that the duties would be reduced whenever the imported products were subject to an internal revenue tax similar to that on domestic products. In C.D. 1918, the customs court ruled that the reduced duty be applied and that internal revenue tax under IRC sec. 5001(a)(1) be paid by the importer on flavoring extracts containing alcohol and fit for beverage purposes.
